INTRODUCTION

Greetings from BalticShop!

It is that time of year again, the season of giving and reflecting, and the season of warmth from within. In this year's catalog you will find Baltic gifts for all ages and interests - jewelry, amber, books, music, souvenirs, knitwear. We also have a good selection of Christmas tree ornaments, candles, chocolates and cookies. Stock up during the holiday season for small gifts from Lithuania, Estonia or Latvia, or to keep on hand for extra home accents and treats. Browse our catalog, go online to www.balticshop.com for more selections, find something unique, and bring home a little piece of Baltic Christmas.

Wishing you a happy holiday season,

From 1854 to 1858 K.Valdemārs studied national and economic science at the University of Terbata. He was proud to attach a card with the remark „Latvietis” at the door of his room. K.Valdemārs was the first of educated Latvians who openly admitted his nationality and advised others not to be ashamed and not to refuse it. At this time his card with a word „Latvietis” was something unseen.

4 | My Estonia 3. What Happened?, J.Petrone, in English, paperback, 352 p., 7-1/2" x 5", #31608, $25
This is the story of a man looking for his place in the world. He moved from New York to Estonia with his wife, kid, and 6 suitcases. Within 24 hours he found a home and had to learn how to make a fire. Soon he had a house with four furnaces and his Estonian wife was running a publishing house. He became an academic, dabbled in diplomacy, but got depressed seeing the drunks and the mice, lice and ice in the country. Writing about it - bestsellers! - seemed to be his calling, until it all collapsed overnight.
The action in Justin Petrone's new book takes place mostly in two Estonian towns - folksy Viljandi and teacherly Tartu - from 2007 (the Bronze Soldier riots) through 2013 (when Petrone left Estonia amid a national scandal).
